WELCOME/BOOZHOO/ TEKWANONWERA:TONS TO KINGSTON/KATAROH:KWI/ KEN'TARÓKWEN/CATARACOU

Kingston remains on the ancestral homelands of the Huron-Wendat, Anishinaabe, and Haudenosaunee Confederacy.

We acknowledge the everlasting presence of these Nations and other First Nations, Métis, and Inuit who share this landscape today. We are grateful to reside in and remain visitors to this territory, while acknowledging our responsibility to honour the land, water, and skies with gentle respect and purifying preservation.

SUSTAINABLE PLEDGE

Tourism Kingston strives to incorporate sustainability in all its operations. Our actions and initiatives are guided by our GreenStep Sustainable Tourism certification, the UN Sustainable Development goals, and the City of Kingston's climate leadership plan.

The Visitor Information Centre has received Bronze certification from GreenStep Canada, acknowledging our sustainable measures in place and in progress.

Kingston is Sustainable Tourism Silver certified, acknowledging our measures in place and in progress as a destination.

VISITOR INFORMATION CENTRE

Our staff can help you make the most of your visit to Kingston, with advice on what to see and do, where to stay, and where to eat. They can also provide free maps of the city (including maps of walking trails and cycling routes).

Memorial Centre Farmers' Market

Kingston is located in the heart of Frontenac County farmland. Frontenac farms feed Kingston tables, and Kingston chefs utilize fresh, seasonal ingredients from local growers and producers.

DAFT Brewing is one of Kingston's unique breweries.

Kingston has a long history of beer brewing. The first breweries in the city operated in the 1790s. Rideau Street, in the city's downtown, was then known as Brewery Street.

Today, Kingston is home to seven beer makers and one cider maker, each with their own take on the craft.

You can sample some of Kingston's brews at bars, restaurants, and festivals across the city. Several beverage makers also offer take-home and delivery options.

SPRING

Enjoy pancakes with warm maple syrup at Maple Madness at Little Cataraqui Creek Conservation Area. This family-friendly event takes place every March. Bring your family for a guided sugar bush tour, wagon rides, scavenger hunts, and more. And of course, sample some maple syrup!

Tapping sugar maple trees for their sap in the springtime is an ancient tradition in this region, originating with the Indigenous Peoples, who traditionally harvested and celebrated the gift of “sweet water.” Learn more at the Maple Madness interpretative talks and demonstrations.

In May, Kingston parks, community spaces, and gardens come alive with tulips, daffodils, lilacs, and more.

Explore the Queen's University campus, where you will see curated gardens set against the backdrop of historic limestone buildings. The green space in front of Summerhill, Queen's oldest building (1839), was also once the site of Canada's first botanical garden. Today, this space is home to the Queen's arboretum, featuring a wide variety of trees.

SUMMER

There's so much to do in Kingston in the summer, from golfing and boating to diving and fishing to hiking and biking. Kingston's waterfront trail is easy to navigate on foot or by bike. Keep an eye out for the wayfinding signs along the trail, which will provide directions and teach you about the history of the region. If you didn't bring your bike or kayak, don't worry. You can rent one!

Discover the unique shopping experiences in Kingston's walkable downtown. You can explore the city and learn its history with a guided trolley tour and take in the beauty of the Thousand Islands on a sightseeing boat cruise.

A number of hotels and inns offer special packages that bundle Kingston experiences and attractions with your stay.

*Find your perfect Kingston package:

Cool off this summer with a dip in the pool – or in the lake. Breakwater Park in downtown Kingston offers an accessible lakeside beach, as well as picnic amenities. Grass Creek Park, in the city’s east end, also offers a large sandy beach and swimming area (plus an off-leash area for your canine friends). To the west, Lake Ontario Park, Kingston’s largest urban waterfront park, has a cobble beach, splash pad, beach volleyball court, and boat launch. Kids will enjoy the wading pool at McBurney Park and the Culligan Water Park at the Memorial Centre.

AUTUMN

Autumn is the perfect time of year to take in Kingston's architecture and historic sites. Take a guided tour or explore on your own.

Today, some of these historic limestone buildings are home to restaurants, bookstores, boutiques, and more.

Kingston is called "the limestone city" as so many of its historic downtown buildings were built using locally sourced limestone.

Take a guided tour of downtown Kingston and hear about the city's spooky past with The Haunted Walk of Kingston.

Kingston is home to more than 20 museums, national historic sites, art galleries, and archives. Explore geology, Canadian history, hockey, technology, medicine, and more. Enjoy hands-on learning with the kids or savour a quiet moment with a favourite painting.
